Rancho la Loma was planned to be an idyllic place that combines the tranquility of luxury country life, with the history and proximity of San Miguel de Allende, the jewel of Mexico's magical towns. Rancho la Loma was designed based on modern criteria of sustainability and respectful coexistence with nature. Thirty hectares of green areas, trees and olive trees are the setting for the exclusive properties of this subdivision that also has an equestrian area with stables, a ring and riding hall to be able to freely enjoy the equestrian life. The architectural style of Rancho la Loma evokes the materials and essence of Italian Tuscany: stone walls of the region, gabled tile roofs, wooden accents, and elegant and welcoming lines. Its extensive free areas honor the essence of the Bajío,
