There is a considerable difference between furnishing a house and finishing one. This remarkable two bedroom residence in Jardines de Allende began with the familiar framework of the Kahlo model, but virtually every aspect of the home has since been reconsidered, refined, and elevated. What emerged is something altogether different from the original developer offering: a deeply considered, completely turnkey home where custom millwork, upgraded materials, intelligent storage, sophisticated outdoor living, and an exceptional eye for design come together with remarkable cohesion.
