Welcome to The Brooklane, a distinctive mid-century modern and Art Deco-inspired property located in San Miguel de Allende. Featuring five bedrooms and five and a half bathrooms, this versatile property blends striking architecture, thoughtful design, and exceptional walkability just minutes from El Jardín Principal. The Brooklane was designed to provide privacy, comfort, and flexibility for guests while maintaining the warmth and livability of a private residence. Today, it functions as a successful luxury rental property while offering numerous possibilities for future use: a private home, multi-generational residence, corporate retreat, or continued income-producing investment. Designed by architect Harold Forster Van Dine, the property reflects a sophisticated modernist sensibility with subtle influences from classic Mexican modern architecture. Throughout the home, carefully curated interiors, natural materials, vibrant colors, and abundant greenery create an atmosphere that feels both...
