There is a considerable difference between furnishing a house and finishing one.This remarkable two bedroom residence in Jardines de Allende began with the familiar framework of the Kahlo model, but virtually every aspect of the home has since been reconsidered, refined, and elevated. What emerged is something altogether different from the original developer offering: a deeply considered, completely turnkey home where custom millwork, upgraded materials, intelligent storage, sophisticated outdoor living, and an exceptional eye for design come together with remarkable cohesion.The transformation is apparent from the moment you enter.Throughout the home, standard finishes have given way to details that feel intentional and permanent. European style double pane windows improve both comfort and efficiency, while custom lighting, upgraded tile, refined plumbing fixtures, mini split climate control, and carefully selected finishes establish a level of quality rarely found within the development.The living spaces...
